

This table contains a list of items on the left and a grid of data on the right. The data is organized into several columns, likely representing different categories or time periods. The text labels on the left include various technical or administrative terms.

This table is similar to the one in the top-left, but with a different set of text labels on the left. The grid structure and data organization are consistent with the other tables.

This table continues the list of items and data from the previous tables. The layout and data structure are consistent with the other three tables.

This table is the final one in the set, containing the last set of text labels and data points in the grid format.
